WalkMe Announces New Canadian Data Centre to Enhance Services for Canadian Government Departments

Ottawa, ON – Orangutech’s software partner, WalkMe, a global leader in digital adoption solutions, has announced the completion of a Canadian Data Centre to better serve the unique needs of the Canadian public sector.

This significant investment ensures that Canadian organizations can now harness the full power of the WalkMe platform with advanced analytics and features.

With this development, the Canadian Data Centre acts upon WalkMe’s commitment to support Canadian clients and reflects their dedication to delivering secure, reliable, and high-performing technology solutions in Canada.

"The new Canadian Data Centre marks a significant milestone in WalkMe’s evolution in the Canadian market," said Lachlan Henderson, President of Orangutech. "Our clients can now realize greater value from WalkMe’s digital adoption platform with the added assurance that their data is being handled within Canada."

Orangutech and WalkMe have a long-standing partnership rooted in a shared vision of empowering organizations to maximize their technology investments and enhance the value delivered to Canadian organizations.

The introduction of a Canadian Data Centre exemplifies a collaborative effort to drive innovation and enhance user experiences to achieve digital transformation objectives across Canada.
